

Food notes: Virginia Beer Co. getting ready to party

The Virginia Beer Company will celebrate three years this weekend with live music, local food and new beers. (Rob Ostermaier / Daily Press)

By Mike Holtzclaw
Staff writer

MARCH 19, 2019, 1:00 PM

Virginia Beer Co. is throwing itself a birthday party on Saturday.

The brewery at 401 Second St. in Williamsburg will celebrate turning three years old with a day of music, games, food and, of course, beer. The event runs from noon to 9 p.m.

A standard $10 admission ticket includes a souvenir koozie and a first pour. Additional drink tickets will be sold. Those who want to enjoy the event without imbibing can buy a $5 “designated driver” ticket. Advance tickets are available at virginiabeerco.com.

Saturday’s event will feature some new beers and some old favorites, as well as 16-ounce cans of Virginia Beer Co.’s popular IPA Free Verse variants. Paul’s Deli, DoG Street Pub, Old City Barbecue and Blue Talon Bistro will serve up food.

A full day of live music will culminate with a performance by Super Doppler, the local band that’s just returning from a tour and a performance at South by Southwest in Austin, Texas. Virginia Beer Co. also has lined up Good Shot Judy for 6 p.m. Friday, and Brasswinds (unplugged) at noon Sunday at its annual “Hangover Brunch.”

That Sunday event will include the release of a City Plus Coffee Porter, featuring cold brew from Aromas.

For information, call 757-378-2903.